

October 4, 2012

SARquavitae and Nestlé signed an agreement of collaboration in clinical nutrition

Nestlé Health Science SARquavitae and have signed a partnership agreement to promote and integrate specialized nutritional care in care homes and in home care service SARquavitae based on the needs of each person.

Through this agreement, Nestlé SARquavitae advise in order to standardize the assessment and nutritional intervention in various risk situations. To carry out this project, and Nestlé specialists NutriSAR, team nutrition experts SARquavitae available, advance in clinical nutrition expertise will facilitate the early detection and treatment of nutritional deficiencies, as well as identifying new needs and opportunities to improve the eating habits of people.

The partnership allows SARquavitae benefit NHS experience in the field of clinical nutrition specialist, as a quality factor and differential added to their users.

For its part, Nestlé Health Science benefits SARquavitae experience as an expert in the care and services dependency care in order to elevate the role of nutrition as a tool of quality of care and advance its development in providing solutions and nutritional services in the area of care for the elderly.

The agreement also provides training courses for professionals involved in the care of the elderly and dependent situation. It is aimed at assessing training and dietary and nutritional care of these patients.

The agreement also includes steps to establish criteria based on clinical evidence to facilitate the measurement, monitoring and control of the nutritional dimension as a measure of quality of care, and the updating and development of nutritional action protocols.